

TRANSCRIPT

On June 13, engineers at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory installed the suspension system and a set of test wheels on the Mars 2020 rover.

The wheels will be replaced with flight models after the rover is shipped to Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

The rover is on schedule to launch in summer 2020 and arrive at Mars in February 2021.